Part 2: An Introduction to Executive Function Development in Early Childhood

Presenters: Megan Cullins and Barb Dent

Date: Thursday, October 26, 2023

Time: 6:30 – 8:30 pm

Location: 22768 119th Ave, Maple Ridge (please enter through “the Club” at the back of the building)

Cost: Free

Maximum: 20

Workshop information:

Megan Cullins and Barb Dent together have many years of experience in the field of Early Childhood Education. They both are consultants in the Supported Child Development program at Ridge Meadows Association for Community Living as well as being parents and Barb is a grandparent of two young grandsons. They ask the question: Have you ever wondered about the construction and development that is taking place inside your child’s brain. Maybe you’ve questioned why they may be behaving, reacting and learning things in a certain way. Join Megan and Barb for an introduction to executive function development through the lens of early childhood. Executive function skills are a set of mental skills and actions that we use every day to learn, work, regulate behaviours and manage daily life. Megan and Barb will share when the skills develop and ways to promote and scaffold the development of these skills through every day experiences.

Maximum: 20

Workshop information: Anita Galvin and Colene Thompson are Early Childhood Educators working in the field for over 30 years. They both work at CCRR in Maple Ridge where they are involved in facilitating a play program in the communities of Maple Ridge and Pitt Meadows. They are also both Practicum Instructors with the ECE program at Ridge Meadows College. Each one has a passion for getting the message of how important play is in the life of a young child out there, knowing children of all ages discover the world through play. They will provide for parents many opportunities and examples of play. As Early Childhood Educators, parents and grandparents they bring a wealth of ideas and experiences and are happy to share their wisdom on the benefits and significance of play. What may look like a simple activity is really a multifaceted engagement for your child. They will look at all types of play and offer activities and for you and your child. A small engaging take home activity will be included.
